DETAILED ACTION

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 6/24/2004 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1 –11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102 (e) as being anticipated by Epstein et al (U.S. 5,782,860).

Epstein et al disclose in Figs. 2-4 and 5c, a system for percutaneously forming a closure material to seal a puncture in the tissue of human body having the limitations of claims 1-2 and 7-11, including: the closure material comprises a mixture components which, upon mixing, react to form a solid closure material composition (see col. 5, lines 22-32), where a catheter (22) has a distal end, and at least one nozzle (28) locates adjacent the distal end. A structure (32) comprises a wall which defines an interior and exterior of the structure. Item 32 of Epstein comprises an open configuration which is capable for allowing blood to flow through the wall of the structure, and where the closure material composition forms a localized in situ which is adjacent the vessel puncture site to seal the vessel puncture site (see col. 5, lines 21-47). Note that an introducer assembly (86,87) is capable of dispensing a mixture components into the catheter lumen, and where the introducer assembly includes a mixing chamber (91) to bring the mixture components into a mixed condition before entering the catheter lumen (see col. 5, lines 34-49). Furthermore, at best seen of fig. 3, item 36 of Epstein can be broadly characterized as a closure composition test chamber. Note: The introductory statement of intended use and all other functional statements have been carefully considered but are deemed not to impose any structural limitations on the claims distinguishable over the Epstein et al reference which is capable of being used as claimed if one desires to do so.

Regarding claims 3 and 4, where the assembly further includes a mechanism to operate the structure (32) between a collapsed and an expanded condition; and wherein the mechanism includes an element (47- inherent feature) to lock the structure in a desired condition.

Regarding claims 5 and 6, where an introducer assembly (86,87) communicates with the catheter; and wherein the introducer assembly includes an air vent (28).
